This side-gable bungalow faces southeast. Set on a brick foundation, the one-and-a-half story, framed and weather-boarded house has been heavily altered in the service of its new function as office space. The gable roof is interrupted by a two-bay gabled dormer. The five-bay facade includes three doors and two windows with altered six-over-one double-hung sash. The vinyl siding is new, as are the piers, balusters, and rails of the porch. There is a one-story wing, framed on top of a concrete foundation, built out from the southwest gable end. Another big one-story flat-roofed addition has been built onto the rear of the structure.
